

10 Feb 1997

A snowmobile trail in Wasatch Mountain State Park is inside the area proposed for cross-country skiing in the 2002 Games.

Will cow pasture become a Games site?

Cross-country venue proposed by parks division is located inside Wasatch Mountain State Park.

"It's not hard to envision," said state parks director Courtland Nelson. "It would be a nice complement to golf in summer."

Nelson noted that although Wasatch

Sherron J. Winteron, who operates a dairy farm near the spot tentatively nominated for cross-country events.

The Salt Lake Organizing Committee, responsible for providing Games venues

new spin on Y. traffic job

CRASH TEST: We weren't there at the time, but we can imagine it must have been rather upsetting for Jeanne Cain, a BYU student with a part-time job as a traffic officer, to be working in her booth in the Museum of Art parking lot Thursday and suddenly find the world tilting.

Seems the driver of a university delivery truck misjudged the height of his vehicle and smacked into the booth's overhang, toppling the tiny building and knocking everything askew.

Damage to the truck is estimated between $2,000 and $4,000. It'll cost $20,000 to replace the booth.

Cain was frightened and suffered a number of minor cuts from cascading glass.

Just a suggestion — the university might want to build the replacement booth out of solid steel.

Having a ball: We have an idea on how to fill the empty seats at the Marriott Center when BYU's team plays basketball.

Put the prophet on the team.

President Gordon B. Hinckley doesn't have any trouble gathering a crowd. At the Church Education System fireside recently, so many college-age people showed up that signs were posted on the center doors reading, "This building is at capacity and is considered closed."

Spell it out: We are just a tad offended at a release sent to us by the folks in charge of the Provo School District spelling bee.

They sent us a notice asking for coverage of the upcoming 21st annual Regional Spelling Bee with a note, "We have had a problem dur-

GARY M. MCKELLAR, DESERET NEWS

Utah law prohibits any establishment that has all-nude dancers from getting a liquor license. So most "topless" dancing bars make the dancers wear pasties over nipples and G-strings over private parts.

But now the group Citizens For Positive Community Values believes federal case law will allow local prosecutors to force all clubs to make dancers wear "bikini-type" clothing, says former federal prosecutor Brent Ward, who is working with Taylor on the bill.

Taylor especially wants to go after the several all-nude, no-liquor clubs in the state, as well as escort services, where dancers or models take off all their clothes.

"There are even some places where (patrons) can get a private sign said he wasn't late when the a guy is at home telling his wife the become a point of contention when Not a big deal here, but it could in that part of town.

Bank sign, it's four degrees colder these. And if you go by the Central Street, The Central Bank sign further south is ahead of both of the Alpine Credit Union on State is always a little behind the sign for Western Community Bank. According to our research, the temperature signs.

war is going on between time and The time is now: In north Orem, a uninited? come at all? And how do you spell over to snap a shot? Then why show up or not? Are our photographers supposed to wait until it's all Hrrmmph. Are we supposed to have a picture in the paper but It goes on to say, "it's great to they participate in the bee." taken during the bee. Some parents feel it distracts the students as problems. How would you deal with art classes at the University of Utah that use live nude models? What about the rare artistic performances in which an actor or dancer appears partly nude?

"As with all laws, you have to be careful with overzealous enforcement," Ward said.

● A federal court ruling also prompted Rep. Steve Barth, D-Salt Lake, to introduce legislation that would allow police officers to confiscate the cars of those arrested for soliciting prostitutes.

"People say prostitution is a victimless crime and that this (confiscation) is too harsh," Barth said. "I say it is not a victimless crime. All you have to do is talk to the families of the johns and visit the neighborhoods where prostitutes are conducting business to realize

Deseret News staff writer
By Tom Hayes

Clubs help shape lives of boys, girls

Please see MIDWAY on B2

is looking for a new location for cross-country events in the face of strong opposition to putting them at Mountain Dell and are in and around Parleys Canyon east of Salt Lake City. Provo is jockeying to win the venue, but SLOC is taking nominations for a new site until May 1. The Wasatch County location is the second alternative offered to date; others are likely to surface. If chosen for cross-county events, Wasatch County is likely to surface.

it is time to attack the problem by attacking the customer.

● Rep. David Ure, R-Kamas, has a bill that would decriminalize sodomy for married couples and makes the penalty for forcible sodomy the same as forcible rape, a first degree felony. Ure's bill leaves in place Utah's prohibition on sodomy for unmarried couples; that would remain a Class B misdemeanor. Ure says he's carrying the bill for the Statewide Association of Prosecutors.

Ure said there should be no penalty for sodomy between married couples, even if the law is not enforced. "What happens (in a married couple's) bedroom is between them," and the state should not be involved, Ure said.

● Sen. Robert Montgomery, R-North Ogden, is concerned about

Trailblazers. Several years ago several members of the professional basketball team picked up some underage girls at a Utah mall and had sex with them. No charges were filed. Although Nelson's bill was killed, he may amend it and bring it back this year.

"My bill was tough; a 16-year-old boy could get a prison sentence" for having sex with his 16-year-old girlfriend. He may change it "to find a way to get at older men who are running off with these underage girls," he said.

A spin-off of such a law, Nelson said, is that gang prevention officers unable to pin crimes on the offenders could use the statutory rape provision against gang members who are having sex with their girlfriends and getting them pregnant.

white blacks are still a minority in Utah, condition proved greatly, he said.

"I have seen a lot of prejudice in my life," he said, adding that racism is still widespread in Utah, just that now it is more subtle and rarely the in-your-face kind.

Green has been married six times and has five children, all of them educated.

DEGN

Continued from B1

"I paid more attention to the piano," he said. "I didn't play basketball that and played basketball didn't study."

Bottom line: He flunked. The academic standards were too high. Green before retiring in 1985.

Ficer fight

MIDWAY, Wasatch County — The Olympics might be coming to the county, as Wasatch County weighs a proposal to put a venue for the 2002 Winter Games in a cow pasture outside of town. The site, proposed by the state Division of State Parks, would be on the south end of Wasatch Mountain State Park in isolated, hilly terrain that is now leased for grazing. The area borders the northwest corner of Deer Creek Reservoir.

Mountain State Park covers 36 square miles, it is known almost entirely for its popular 27-hole golf course on the north end of the park about five miles from the potential Olympic site. He said the project, which would create an expansive facility that would remain long after the Games, would proceed only if local support exists. County commissioners this week said they favored it, pending more study of the proposal. "It's an interesting idea. . . it'd probably attract some long-term business and tourism," said County Commissioner

Deseret News staff writer
By Karl Gates

10 Feb 1997